

ART & DESIGN | October 4, 2016

8 Things You Need to See at Frieze London

From Wolfgang Tillmans and James Turrell to Lee Scratch Perry

Written by HANNAH BHUIYA

With the Frieze Art Fair flowering again throughout Regent's Park from the 5th-9th October, London will be bursting at the seams with Art Art Art. With 116 galleries showing in Frieze London, a giant Frieze Sculpture Park and 113 in Frieze Masters, as well as loads of other events happening off-site, choosing what to see is like trying to choose a Kombucha flavour from a stacked Wholefoods' fridge.

Amuse has taste-tested the scene for you, so you can head straight into the action. Here are 8 sure-fire sees of Frieze 2016:

Connect with us

Newsletter

Spotlight Panel – Art and Feminism(s) at Frieze Masters

Female presence in Frieze is stronger than ever before – try and catch Sex & Money a talk show hosted by feminist philosopher Ewa Majewska and artist Wojciech Kosma in Berlin’s non-profit space Oracle, or P.P.O.W Gallery in New York’s Four generations of feminism themed booth.

CAROLEE SCHNEEMAN, FUSES, 1965 GELATIN SILVER PRINT

Each generation of female artists must engage with a different ‘feminism’, and that issue is up for discussion between curator Alison Gingeras (Guggenheim, Centre Pompidou, Palazzo Grassi) and artists Nancy Grossman and Joan Semmel at Frieze Masters Talks on 7th October.