

On View

11 Gallery and Museum Shows Across the Country to See in Honor of Black History Month

Several shows open this month featuring work by well-known African American artists.

Sarbani Ghosh, February 10, 2017

SHARE

Benny Andrews, Composition (study for Trash), 1971.
Photo: Adam Reich. / Courtesy The Studio Museum Harlem

7. “Circa: 1970” at the Studio Museum Harlem, New York

The Studio Museum Harlem has brought out work from its collection that reflects the socio-political, cultural, and historical situation in America between 1970 and 1979. The 1970s was a pivotal decade in black culture and history, and the show features artists such as Romare Bearden, Benny Andrews, David Hammons, Ed Clark, and many more.

Location: Studio Museum Harlem, 144 West 125th Street, New York, New York

Price: $7 adult tickets, $3 student and senior tickets, members and children under 12 are free

Date and time: Through March 5. Thursday–Friday, 12 p.m.–9 p.m.; Saturday 10 a.m.–6 p.m.; Sunday, 12 p.m.–6 p.m.

Morton Broffman, Dr. King and Coretta Scott King Leading Marchers, Montgomery, Alabama, March 1965, Photo courtesy The Bronx Museum of the Arts

